THE TERRIBLE FLOODS IN Africa's Sudan and Asia's Bangladesh which have been all over our television screens in recent weeks aren't "Natural Disasters" or "Acts of God".

They are artificial catastrophes, "Acts of Man", or to be exact too many men, too many Africans and Asians wearing out the soil, chopping down the trees and destroying the balance of nature.

How does this cause floods?. The expanding Black and Brown populations of Africa and Asia cut down the native forests for firewood and to create more room for the increased population to make a living from dirt farms. The top soil in hot, dry tropical climates just blows away. Scientists in India calculate that their soil is lost 400 times faster once the trees are gone.

When it rains, without tree roots to bind the soil and hold it in place it just washes away in sudden Flash Floods, leaving barren, eroded desert on which nothing can grow .The soil, blown and washed away, all ends up in the rivers, silting them up and raising the river bottom, causing rivers to burst their banks and flood, as in the Sudan and Bangladesh.

Although the charity appeals don't stress the point, there is no doubt in the experts' minds that the floods are their victims' own fault. The area of the Indian Himalayan foothills where the Ganges, that flooded Bangladesh, rises has had, over the last thirty years, three-quarters of its tree cover removed. Over the same period, the area prone to flooding has shot up from 25 million to 65 million hectacres.

In Nepal, another area from which the Bengali floodwaters came, half the forests have been chopped down since 1950, much of it by lumber merchants in connivance with corrupt forestry officials.

Meanwhile the population in these areas keep rising. Bangladesh, no bigger than England and Wales, has 110 million inhabitants, increasing by 3% annually. That is as if in England the population of three cities the size of Birmingham appeared from nowhere every year! No wonder the Asians are overcrowded, underfed and wrecking the land that used to feed them.

In Africa, the picture is the same. In the past century, for example, forest cover in Ethiopia, where the Blue Nile that flooded the Sudanese capital Khartoum rises, has been slashed from 40% to just 4%. More trees are being chopped down every day as the Black population skyrockets, again at 3% a year.

But it is White Charity, well-meaning interference with the balance of nature, which caused the problem in the first place. Before the do-gooders interfered, natural factors kept the numbers of Blacks and Asians down to a level that the land could support. Then came our Aid, removing these factors without teaching the natives to keep their numbers down by birth-control, to what the land can feed, as we do in Europe and America.

The result has been over-grazing, forest-felling, destruction of the land, drought flood and famine. Giving more Aid will NOT save any lives at all in the long run. It will make things worse. It will simply enable them to breed faster, destroying what's British Inventions Must Benefit Britain FIRST!

A REVOLUTIONARY body scanner, developed in Britain, is being widely used all over the Western World - except in this country.

American companies ruthlessly infringing patents designed to protect Britain's innovation have exploited the scanner and sold it to all countries except Britain.

The National Front believes that British inventions should be produced and marketed from Britain and should only be for export when our home market has been satisfactorily catered for.

Vintage Cars Under EEC Fire

NOW THE Common Market is telling Britain's vintage car owners that their days are numbered.

This latest dictat from the EEC says that no car over 20 years old will be allowed on Britain's roads. This would mean the end of vintage car rallies and annual events such as the nostalgic London to Brighton run.

Isn't it about time the British people told the Euro-bureaucrats of Brussels exactly where to stick their dictats!

Race Relations Lunacy

THERE'S ONE law if your White and another if your Black. That's the only conclusion that comes out of the Olympic Games in Seoul.

Zola Budd was hounded out of the British team because she had presented prizes at a cross-country event in South Africa. However nothing was said about Sydney Maree the black middle distance runner who has been conducting coaching clinics in South Africa.

Environment Under Attack

THE LOSS of hedgerows in Britain is at an all time high with some 500,000 miles of hedgerow disappearing since 1947.

The National Front believes that Britain's hedgerows should be protected by law and farmers who flout the law should be taken to court.

Hedgerows are the habitat of shrubs and wildlife and their destruction, by intensive farming, is a direct attack on our environment.

More Illegal Immigrants

MORE ILLEGAL immigrants are getting into Britain and the Police and Customs Officers are at full stretch in their efforts to stop them.

In the first six months of this year there were more illegal immigrants detained and deported than during the whole of 1985 or 1986.

ESSO Sponsors

ESSO is to sponsor 4,000 unemployed members of minority groups at the Open College, set up last year to provide Open University-style courses in vocational skills.

So if your White and a heterosexual - I'm afraid you'll just have to turn up to the dole office as usual.

FRONT TELLS M.o.D. "BUY BRITISH"

• Britain's own: The Challenger 2 tank which the Ministry of Defence should buy.

THE MINISTRY of Defence must buy British. That's the message from the National Front as the British Army debates whether to replace the ageing Chieftain tank fleet with the American M1 Abrams or Britain's own Challenger 2.

The NF's argument is simple. American defence technology is unreliable and expensive.

The M1 Abrams is powered by hi-tech and very thirsty gas-turbine engines for which Britain has no support facilities.

The M1 Abrams is armed with a smooth-bore 120 German gun while the British Army's Challengers have a rifled gun. This discrepancy would require the army to field two types of ammunition for its tank fleet.

If the Ministry of Defence selects the American tank then the British tank industry will be destroyed at a stroke. The Vickers factories where the Challenger 2 is being built in Newcastle and Leeds would be idle within two years.

It is in the clear interests of Britain and the British people that Britain defends itself with British tanks made in British factories by British workers!

IRA Bomber Lives It Up In London!

IN 1973 DOLOURS Price was jailed for life, together with her sister Marion, for planting a series of IRA car bombs in London. The most devasting was outside the Old Bailey. It killed one person and injured 170, some of them for life. Just ordinary British people going about their business on a busy London street.

When the Old Bailey bomb went off, Dolours Price and her sister had already been caught. But they said nothing to their Police questioners. They just looked at them and smiled at 3.00pm when they knew their bomb was about to go off. Smiled because they knew their silence would complete their aim - to kill as many ordinary men, women and children as possible.

Under a National Front Government the Price Sisters would have hanged. Under a Tory Government, led by Iron Lady Margaret Thatcher, where are they now?

Not even in jail. Both were set free after eight years on 'compassionate grounds' after conning Home Office Officials that they had the slimmers disease anorexia nervosa.

Now Dolours Price lives in a luxury £250,000 flat in London's Maida Vale. She is married to actor Stephen Rea, a Belfast IRA supporter and Communist who once appeared in Crossroads and is now starring in a play at London's National Theatre. She drives around in a smart Volkswagen and lives the high life, throwing trendy parties for her theatrical friends.

The murdering bitch's victims are not so lucky. Like ex-policeman Malcolm Hines. His leg was shattered by Price's bomb, and he had to leave the force. Fifteen years after Dolores Price and her sister struck him down, Mr Hines is still in continual pain. He cannot walk or have sex. He said "Price got out of her so-called life sentence by faking anorexia. I still have to serve mine.

Mr Hines echoed the view of the NF and most decent Britons when he went on: "It's outrageous that she's free to walk around London. It's not too late to hang her".

• Dolours Price: This murdering bitch walks free while her victims serve a life sentence.

CAR IMPORTS PUT BRITISH WORKERS ON THE DOLE!

THE BOOM in car sales in August due to the new F-registrations coming on to the roads highlighted the failure of the Government to protect our motor industry from being flooded by foreign imports. August's total of cars sold is 17% up on August last year. Over 70,000 extra cars were sold. But only 500 of them were British. The rest of the increase was due to even more foreign cars flooding into Britain.

Of the 477,305 cars sold in August, 61% were imported. Fewer than half of the cars sold in Britain in our peak sales period were made in Britain, and of the 39% that were, most were not wholly British made, but relied on imported components

Much of the import rise in August was not due to the Japanese for once but to our Common Market partners flooding our home market.

After the August boom, year to date sales figures show the pathetic state of Britain's once proud motor industry. Market leader with 26.6% of the YTD market is Ford, an American multi-national which builds in Britain. Next is Rover Group - all that remains in British hands of our vehicle industry - with 15.1%, followed by US multi-national General Motors Vauxhall and Opel marques, collectively 13.7%. Then comes the Japanese Nissan, who have sold 98,000 cars in Britain this year so far, over half the Japanese total import of 180,289. Then comes the French Peugeot-Talbot, German Audi-VW, French Renault, Swedish Volvo, Italian Fiat and French Citroen.

• Foreign cars flooding Britain

Of the top ten car firms selling in Britain only one is in British hands.

Pathetic, isn't it. At this rate soon there will be no British car industry left unless the Government wakes up and bans the import of products such as cars which we can make ourselves as well as seizing British factories in the hands of foreigners who export the sweat of the British workers' brow.

The National Front says all cars on British roads must be built in Britain in British-owned factories by British workers.

And the Tories call it Progress!

Authors of their Own Misfortune

left of the land. The end result of do-gooding aid is to turn fertile forest land on which a population of Blacks and Asians could be supported into a barren desert which can feed no one. Then all the millions living on it will simply die, murdered by Oxfam, Christian Aid, the Overseas Development Administration and the rest.

The only answer is to let nature restore the balance and stop meddling. Some Africans and Asians will die now as a result but not one tenth as many as will die in the future if as Winston Churchill put 'We Feed, They Breed! until they have destroyed the ability of their land to feed any of them and they all starve.

So next time someone waves the flood or famine collecting tin under your nose do the victims a favour - give them nothing or give them a condom - its the only thing that will actually help.

Laying Down the Law in Croydon!

THERE WAS standing room only when Deputy Chairman of the National Front, Martin Wingfield, addressed a meeting of Croydon National Front on Wednesday 31st August at a hotel in the centre of the town.

Outlining the departmental changes in the National Directorate, the party's new Publicity and Branch Liaison Officer said that the National Front was stepping up a gear. "the hap-hazard way that many branches conducted their business must be changed and every branch must be efficient in all aspects of business".

He criticised the local committee for failing to keep the NF's monthly newspaper The FLAG informed of what activities it had done.

"Last month, I understand, a team from Croydon held a very successful paper sale at Silverstone for the British Motor Cycle Grand Prix. Why wasn't a press released issued with that information? Why weren't photographs taken of the activity? Not only would it have made an excellent story with the NF's recent run-in with the British Motor Cycle Industry over imported bikes, it would have prompted branches in other parts of the country to follow suit".

Martin Wingfield praised the branch for its growing door-to-door sales and the excellent work local activists had done in getting a unit in Bromley off the ground.

THE FLAG INTERVIEWS . . .

IAN ANDERSON

NATIONAL FRONT CHAIRMAN

Q: Before we start could you explain how a new chairman of the National Front is elected?

A: The Chairman of the Party, the Deputy Chairman and the Chairmen of Directorate Departments are all elected by a vote of the National Directorate. This system was adopted some years ago and works well because the members of the Directorate meet regularly and get to know each other quite well and they are therefore in a better position to judge who is most suitable for a particular job.

Q: Didn't the Party once have a system whereby the Chairman was elected by the vote of the whole membership?

A: Yes, but how many members actually got to know the people they were voting for. Sometimes they would cast their vote for someone they had never actually met, perhaps on the basis of one speech or one written article. With the current system the Chairman is elected by the people who do get to know both the strengths and weaknesses of the candidates for that position.

Q: So you were elected at the last meeting of the National Directorate. Why did you stand against Martin Wingfield?

A: I didn't. Martin Wingfield stood down and proposed me as his successor. Martin has been an excellent Chairman for the last three years, he has seen us through a very difficult period and has had the guts to stay in the job and get the Party back on the road to recovery.

However he now felt that the time had come for a change. Also he wants more time to devote to other work and he has taken on the Chairmanship of two of the Directorate's most important departments - Publicity and Branch Liaison. He has also agreed to be the Deputy Chairman of the Party.

Q: So what do you see as your most important tasks as Chairman?

A: As I outlined in my closing speech to the Annual Conference I have set out three major themes for the Party over the next 12 months; Maintenance of our Principles, Functioning as a Professional Organisation and Progress in our expansion programme..

Firstly the maintenance of our principles is absolutely essential. Over the next year we will recruit new members, some of whom will come from other organisations and some of these will try to bring their own ideas with them. While we must welcome all new recruits who are of benefit to the Party, it must be made absolutely clear that our principles are not open to negotiation and that they must be accepted before becoming members.

Secondly the National Front must function as a professional organisation. We must know exactly what we are doing. We must avoid mistakes and our officials must behave in a responsible and dedicated manner. Overall we must present an image of being people capable of running this country and of getting Britain out of the mess it is sliding into.

Thirdly it is no good having the right principles and the right policies unless we are able to put them into practice. We must build up the size of the National Front. This is not difficult but does involve hard work by everyone and all our activities must be geared to the overall need to recruit new members.

Q: How do you see the relationship between the national leadership and the branches achieving these tasks?

A: In 1984/85 the National Front grew very rapidly and we expect to repeat this performance. However I do believe that at that time there was an unnecessary amount of power vested in the leadership. These powers were only rarely used except by a small group of troublemakers who have now left us. There is no need for all power to be held by the Directorate and I welcome the increased power now enjoyed by the branches and the regions of the party.

Having said that I do strongly believe that the Party can only operate if everyone is pulling in the same direction. This can only be achieved by persuasion and convincing all our organisers and members that the leadership knows what it is doing and knows where it is going.

With the minor changes over membership agreed at the Annual Conference I think we have now got the balance right between the power of the leadership and the rights of the branches and I would, of course, remind you that the overwhelming proportion of the Directorate is made up of Regional Organisers and consequently there should be no conflict between the Directorate and the Branches.

Q: One of the problems that continues to confront the National Front is its image. Are you worried about this?

A: It is clearly something about which we all must be concerned and there have been two views about this. On one hand some past leaders of the Party have had the attitude that the Press will always hate us so it doesn't matter what we do. On the other hand some members have the view that we should behave exactly like the Tory or Liberal parties.

My own view is that we should always stand up for what we believe in, we should engage in lively activities such as opposing IRA marches and opposing Conservative and other speakers by means of legitimate heckling. We should also welcome into the Party all people who believe in the same things that we stand for, no matter what their age, their background or their appearance.

However I have no time for people who seek to use the NF for their own purposes whether this is as a right-wing Tory pressure group or as a political youth cult. All members of the NF are obliged by our constitution to behave as ambassadors of the Party and any members who bring the party into disrepute will rapidly find themselves out of the National Front.

Q: You sound quite confident about the future, are you?

A: As far as the Party is concerned yes, I am very confident. We have an excellent leadership team and we have some outstanding organisers, our policies are right and our structure is stable. I know from past experience what we need to do in order to capitalise on these assets and I would point out that for the first time for many, many years we have a stable financial base with no large debts. We have publications which appear regularly, we have an expanding range of leaflets, stickers, books and other literature, we have a united Party and a united leadership.

What we now need to do is to move our operation up a gear and that is precisely what was outlined at out Annual Conference. The National Front is now starting to accelerate in terms of literature output, activities and membership numbers; we must now forget about all past difficulties and troubles and set our sights firmly on more important targets. Our first medium term target is to regain our place as Britain's fourth largest national party by overtaking David Owen's SDP - all we need to do to achieve this is to beat the SDP in a few local or parliamentary by-elections. This will take some time but not as long as many people think and once beaten by the NF I don't think Owen's party will hold together for very long. Once that is achieved then we move on to the next one.

Q: I presume you aren't willing to predict a time scale for achieving this first medium term target?

A: 12 months.

BIRMINGHAM BRANCH HITS THE HEADLINES

BIRMINGHAM NATIONAL Front have hit the headlines with their campaign to take the Neighbourhood Watch scheme on step further.

While the NWS looks just after property, the local NF's campaign is designed to look after people, protecting them from street crime. The scheme which is to be launched in the Lozells and Aston districts of the city will focus on apprehending muggers and drug pushers who have been reported to the NF by their victims. Citizens arrest will be the order of the day and as the city's jail start filling up the streets of Birmingham will become a safer place for it citizens.

The NF project caused great excitement in the media. The Birmingham Post made it its front page story, while both regional television stations carried a 10 minute interview with the NF's National Activity Organiser John Hill. Birmingham Radio broadcast an interview with NF Chairman, Ian Anderson, as well as interviews with upset Labour politicans who claimed that if the NF started arresting muggers on the street, community relations in the city would suffer!

The people of Birmingham thought it was a great idea. When a TV reporter asked a white pensioner in Handsworth about the NF's scheme he answered 'About time too'.

Sale for the PDF

ON THE Morning of Saturday 17th September members of Dudley National Front held a papersale in Brierley Hill High Street.

In a little over twenty minutes all literature was completely sold out.

£6.00 of the money raised was sent to the Patriots Defence Fund.

Musing on Marx

He gave an amusing expose of Marxism with special emphasis on some of the less well known quotes of its founder Karl Marx.

More Papers

FORTY COPIES of the FLAG were sold at a paper sale in the centre of Rochdale on Saturday 17th September.

The Branch has doubled its usual order for October.

IRA Picket

LAST MONTH a dozen members of Leeds National Front picketed the Grand Theatre in the City Centre where a meeting had been organised to call for support for the IRA.

Bromley NF

BROMLEY NATIONAL Front Organiser, Adam Saunders has informed The FLAG that Bromley National Front now have their own postal address.

They can be contacted at P.O.Box 212, Bromley, Kent BR1 4JP.

Lichfield Sale

500 leaflets and more than 30 copies of The FLAG were sold in the two hour morning activity. Birmingham Treasurer, Norman Tomkinson said that the NF activists received a good response from local Saturday morning shoppers.

NATIONAL FRONT 1988 ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Friends Meeting House, Euston, London Saturday 10th September 1988.

• Sussex Regional Organiser Ian Taylor listens intently

• An attractive young delegate from Hertfordshire

ON SATURDAY 10th September at the Friends Meeting House in Euston, London, over 100 delegates attended the 1988 Annual Conference of the National Front.

A film of the NF Anti-Terrorism March through London this summer was shown as delegates took their seats and the Conference proper got under way at 11.00 with Deputy Chairman Martin Wingfield and NF Chairman Ian Anderson addressing those present.

SUBSCRIPTIONS

Conference passed a Constitutional Resolution that memberships would be registered through the Administration Dept. and the fees spilt 50-50 with the branch to which the member was attached. The Membership Subscription for 1989 was set at £10.00 with a 50% reduction for O.A.P.s, students and the unemployed.

Delegates voted that the NF should contest a token number of constituencies for the 1989 European elections to highlight to the British public the worst excesses imposed upon them by the Euro-Bureaucrats.

DEFENCE

Conference also passed motions to strengthen the NF's defence policy, present a much more detailed ecological policy document and add to NF foreign policy the statement that "We recognise that Britain has no duty to intervene in international disputes in which the Nation and Race have no interest".

ALLEGIANCE

A resolution on Allegiance and Citizenship saw all degates united in passing . . . "This Annual Conference believes that those dwelling within a nation's borders who owe their primary national allegiance to a foreign state based outside those borders cannot be considered as, and indeed ought not logically wish to be, citizens of that nation. Accordingly, all those eligible under our other policies to remain as citizens resident in the U.K. should be asked to swear an oath affirming that their primary and overriding national loyalty lies within the boundaries of the UK. Persons refusing to swear such an oath, or who having sworn, demonstrate by their words/deeds that they did so falsely and in fact do owe their primary allegiance to a foreign state shall be liable at the discretion of the Home Secretary or other suitable authority to lose their British citizenship and any or all of the rights appertaining thereunto.

PALESTINE

The most lively debate came in the afternoon on the question of Palestine. Conference was asked to re-affirm the National Front's policy of self-determination for the Palestinian people. This was challenged by a resolution that the NF should recognise the state of Israel. Impassioned speeches advocated each policy but the day was won by the Palestinian Lobby whose argument that . . . the National Front must be a principled party of racial nationalism and that our principles must apply to all our policies. In particular the right of all people to work out their own future in their own lands is a fundamental principle and this applies to the Palestinian people whose land has been stolen by the action of the Israeli Jews. . . was carried by a three to one majority.

The collection was ably conducted by Executive member Steve Brady raising £530 while a literature table sold more than £150 worth of stickers, posters and leaflets.

The closing speech of the 1988 Conference was given by Chairman Ian Anderson. He outlined the strategy for the coming year stressing that every member of the National Front had a role to play in promoting the party. He said that the yardstick of NF progress would be next year's conference where he wanted to see double the delegates representing double the branches present this year.

The singing of the National Anthem closed the meeting.

• Delegates vote to intoduce a new membership scheme.

• Will Ayto: Let's fight the Euro Elections

More Tory Aid for Mozambique Marxists

In August's issue of The FLAG we detailed the support given by Margaret Thatcher, the so-called Iron Lady, to the Marxist dictatorship of Mozambique.

Since then, Home Secretary Geoffrey Howe has visited the country being photographed exchanging clenched fist salutes with the Marxist militia while two Soviet MI25 helicopter gunships bristling with rockets circled overhead.

During his visit Howe promised the Marxist Government a further £15 million of British taxpayers' money to help open the Limpopo Railway from Maputo to the Zimbabwe border.

So while British people are turned away from our hospitals because there aren't enough beds our Government are handing £15 million of our money to Marxists in Africa!

IRA/Black Links Noted

A TORY MP has finally taken notice of what we have been saying in The FLAG for the last two years - that there are extensive links between the ANC and the IRA.

In a report he has passed on to Margaret Thatcher, Andrew Hunter MP for Basingstoke, sets out contact dates and venues of meetings between the two terrorist groups.

What Mr Hunter appears to have failed to catalogue though is the meetings between the IRA and the numerous black groups in Britain, or for that matter meetings between the IRA and the Conservative Government! One for your note book Mr Hunter - 1972 Willie Whitelaw meets the Provos!

SUPPORT THIS AEROSOL!

AN AEROSOL which does not damage the environment will be on sale within Britain early next year.

TV naturalist, David Bellamy, said that the aerosol is the first that is totally safe for both the user and the environment.

• Exxel: environmental-friendly design.

The EXXEL dispenser will be marketed as a safe alternative to traditional aerosols as it works without propellant gases which affect the ozone layer.

The FLAG hopes that all British housewives will pay the 33% extra for the product and play their part in protecting Britain's environment.

Who Pays The Piper?

£3.37 million was given to the Tory Party in the run up to the last General Election by Big Business.

Hanson Trust, United Biscuits and British and Commonwealth, the financial services group, gave more than £100,000 each while a further 303 companies donated the rest.

EDITORIAL No. 24. October 1988.

THE 1988 ANNUAL Conference of the National Front was a success. It not only was a fitting finale to a summer that saw our Anti-Terrorist march in London and the trip to Ulster, but also a morale-boosting curtain-raiser to an Autumn of activity that will see our Annual Remembrance Day Parade and the NF contesting the Epping Forest by-election.

"The NF is now in a situation, in size and structure, similar to the one we were in in Autumn 1985 - on the edge of a significant breakthrough into Britain's political arena.

1986, instead of seeing that breakthrough, saw the National Front nearly destroyed by a sinister fifth column of cranks and lunatics who had silently wormed their way into positions of power in the Party. They were able to do so because good men said and did nothing.

This must never ever happen again. The National Front is at present like a young sapling. It's growing quickly. From its trunk is sprouting numerous branches and from those branches numerous leaves. Unless that trunk is upright and strong it will bend and twist and the branches will shoot off in all directions and those leaves blow away. That trunk, in these early impressionable days needs support, as saplings do; from a solid stake secure in the ground. That stake as far as the National Front is concerned is the principles of the National Front and it is tied to the young trunk by bonds of loyalty.

If those bonds break or become loosened the young trunk will waver. If the outside elements blow and rain down on that young trunk, without its stake of support, it will be felled.

What this editorial is saying is quite simple. Until the National Front has sunk deep roots and can stand alone there must be no debate on the principles that the National Front has embodied in its constitution. There must be unquestioned loyalty from all National Front officials, members and supporters to the National Front, the National Directorate of the National Front and the elected leadership of the National Front.

Criticisms must of course be voiced, but voiced through the proper channels. Every member belongs to a branch, every branch is part of a region and every region has its representative on the Directorate. Criticism voiced in any other way is not constructive criticism it is destructive. It will be the voice again of those who have failed to learn the lessons of the past and put themselves and their beliefs before the ideals and principles on which the National Front was founded.

It was the whisperers, the 'behind the back critics', the furtive discussion groups and those who sold their souls for five pieces of silver, that tried to destroy the National Front in 1986. Every National Front member should be wary of these antics and if they manifest themselves again they must be ruthlessly crushed.

In 1986 members of the National Front left the Party in their droves because a Party that destroys itself every few years is a waste of time being a member of. 1988 sees those former members and new recruits joining at a welcome rate. If we want to keep them and make that political breakthrough, loyalty must be the key word for all members over the next five years.

Who is Watering the Workers Beer?

• Latvian Lawson

CHANCELLOR NIGEL Lawson is about to become, in the words of the song, "the very fat man who waters the workers' beer". October 1st was the day when Lawson began providing tax incentives to brewers to water down their beer. The effect will, as the Campaign for Real Ale rightly put it, 'wash away what is left of this country's reputation for quality beer in a flood of weak near-beers".

What Lawson is doing is removing the traditional excise duty system which encourages brewers to keep their ale at a minimum original gravity of 1030, 3% alcohol, because they pay the same basic duty on it even if it is weaker so there's no profit in watering the beer.

Above an O.G. of 1030, the basic £27.00 per hectolitre beer duty goes up by 90p for each extra degree, so that on an average strength O.G.1037 bitter the drinker pays 19p a pint excise duty (Common Market VAT is on top of that).

Now duty is to start rising at an O.G. of 1016, and it is feared that supermarket chains will get their tame brewers, who depend on them for bulk canned trade sales, to water their ale as now doing so lowers the tax. The the chain stores can undercut small family off-licences without losing profit. The effect will be, as CAMRA rightly points out, to make British beer, already weaker that it used to be, weaker than most European beers.

Despite protests from CAMRA, representing tens of thousands of British drinkers, and responsible real ale brewers such as David Thompson of Wolverhampton and Dudley Brewers, who retail decent ale at 68p a pint whilst the sharks flog their insipid solution at £1.00 or more, Lawson presses ahead. After all what does he care about the British traditional pint - he's a Latvian and knows nothing about the needs of the British people!

• Thoresby Hall: Britain's Heritage or an Australian Hotel?

Maintain Britain's Heritage For Future Generations

AN AUSTRALIAN development group, Roo Management, is to turn one of Britain's Grade One listed buildings into a hotel.

Thoresby Hall is the last of five Nottinghamshire Dukeries, which were built in the last century. Designed by Anthony Salvin, its survival intact with all its contents has been described by Save Britain's Heritage, the conservation pressure group, as 'something of a miracle'.

The owner of Thoresby Hall, British Coal, seems hell bent on destroying part of Britain's heritage even going so far as to refuse a better offer from a Doncaster-based businessman who wants to keep the hall intact and open to the public.

Could it be that there is more to the Roo Management deal than has been revealed to the public? What ever the case Britain's heritage shouldn't be up for grabs. It should be owned and appreciated by the British people and maintained for future generations to learn about their past.

RITUAL SLAUGHTER: THE FRONT'S CAMPAIGN GOES ON

THE NATIONAL Front has been at the forefront campaigning against ritual slaughter, since it was formed in 1967.

NF publications have printed articles on the subject, the NF Publicity Department have produced leaflets attacking the barbaric practice and NF branches have picketed abattoirs where the sickening slaughter takes place.

The battle against Jewish and Muslim ritual slaughter in Britain must be continued day in day out, and you can play your part in this battle.

Don't let your local school introduce ritually slaughtered meat on to their menus. Kick up a hell of a fuss, go and see the headmaster and write to the board of Governors.

Dont't let your butcher stock ritually slaughtered meat. A lot of meat finds its way on to the British family table because the Jews and Muslims reject a lot of their ritually slaughtered meat. Ask your butcher to confirm that he doesn't stock it - and if he does complain and write to you local newspaper.

If you have a National Front branch in your area tell them about anywhere you know that is using, selling or promoting ritually slaughtered meat. There'll be only too pleased to picket it.

Finally you must write to your MP and to Michael Jopling, Minister of Agriculture. He can be contacted at Whitehall Place, London SW1A 2HH.

STOP THIS EVIL!

• Dying in Agony: Without stunning and in unbelievable pain these sheep are being slaughtered for the benefit of Jews and Muslims living in this country.

By Royal Appointment

I SOMETIMES feel that Prince Charles must find it extremely frustrating just hanging around, waiting to succeed to the throne. He should not, however suppose that he is not succeeding in anything. He suceeds in rousing my latent republicanism every time he makes one of his increasingly frequent pompous public pronouncements.

If there is one thing that I find more offensive than the divine right of kings to rule, it is the divine right of drivelling heirs-apparent to voice trite opinions as though they are invested with some kind of oracular authority.

When he is photographed grinning inanely while dancing with some coal-black mammy, I seethe.. When he proclaims, with an air of plummy virtue, that the Brigade of Guards must be multi-racialised, I yearn for a return of the tumbril.

It is all part, I presume, of his perceived role as a future head of that obscene delusion the multi-racial Commonwealth.

Just recently he was engaged in laying the foundation brick for a self-build scheme for inner-city residents, later to include released prisoners and those on probation. He was photographed, naturally, with a black self-builder, thereby confirming the royal commitment to permanent black settlement.

Well, it is said that the Devil makes work for idle hands so if we must suffer the Prince's continuing presence he should at least be found a job to keep him out of mischief. I suggest the ideal post would be the Commission for Racial Equality, in which position he could issue idiotic proclamations that nobody would take seriously.

The present Chairman, or Lord High Inquisitor, Mr. Michael Day, would most certainly not, however, agree with the Prince's highly unoriginal suggestion that life, and particularly crime, tends to imitate television. As we all know, the American dross that monopolises our TV screens is invariably peopled by black police chiefs, black D.A.s, black judges, and black forensic scientists (although, to redress the balance they are occasionally Jewish).

Mr. Day laments that this is definitely not the case in real life. Blacks, he complains, are scandalously under-represented in the field of law enforcement and grievously over-presented as non-paying guests in H.M. Prisons.

Bigots, I suppose, would suggest that black over-representation in the nick is due to black predominance in the fields of de muggin', de lootin', de slashin', de steamin', de stabbin' and de rapin'.

They forget that it is simply white prejudice that has criminalised these traditional black pastimes, thereby filling our jails with high-spirited sooties.

Surely the way to achieve the proper balance that would gladden the heart of the Lord High Inquisitor is to release all the black jailbirds and recruit them into the police force.

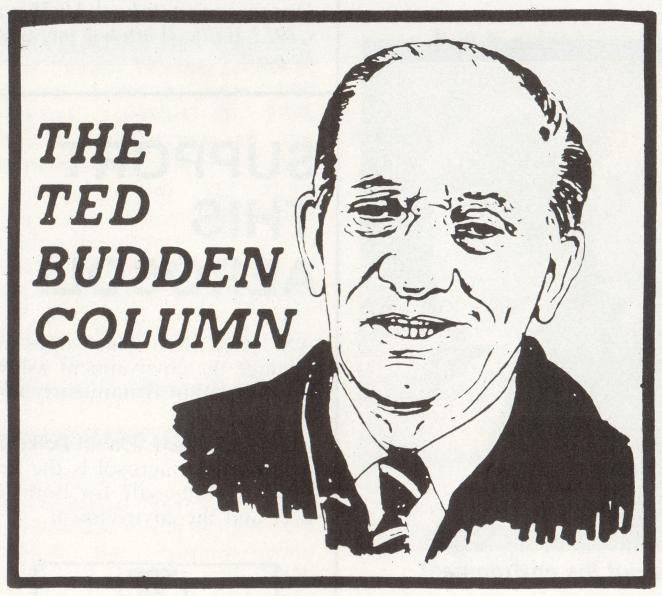
Some Patriot!

MR JULIAN Critchley is the Tory MP for Aldershot. As befits. someone associated with its military tradition, Mr Chritchley is a devotee of the martial arts, particularly boxing, and is a member of the British Boxing Board of Control which regulates the travesty of the sport that still just survives in this country.

You are no doubt aware that the unlikely named Jarvis Astaire (Julius Aaronstein?) is promoting a ghastly mismatch for the World Heavyweight Championship between black American Mike Tyson and our very own glass-jawed Frank Bruno, possibly the largest sootball seen in South London since the closure of Battersea Power Station.

Writing about his prospects, Julian Critchley expresses proper doubts about our big Frank staying the course and then makes a comment that gives a fascinating insight into the mentality of Tory wets, among whom he is one of the dampest.



He says " . . . but ten thousand patriots will be cheering Frank on and hoping he gets lucky."

Patriots indeed?

It is, of course, a common ploy of race-mixers of every political stripe to project black sporting personalities as object of public admiration in order to facilitate the continuing negrification of Britain. In boxing, the white and thick-headed are urged to worship the black and thick-eared.

But there is a rather better definition of patriotism. Now that the 'big fight' is being transferred from the open air Wembley Stadium to the indoor Wembley Arena, many thousands will be hoping that the roof falls in on the numbskull convention with the largest lump falling on Julian Chritchley MP.

Now that's what I call patriotism.

Tough Bunny

I SEE that our wimpish Home Secretary has just announced that he about to get tough with terrorists. No doubt the thought of being on the receiving end of Douglas Hurd's wrath will strike fear into the heart of every IRA psychopath. It must be like being savaged by a rabid rabbit.

The 'get tough' measures that Hurd proposes is to prevent terrorists getting funds by means of strong-arm protection rackets. All very laudable of course. He could start by cracking down on IRA fund-raising in London pubs and on London building sites.

But, naturally, Hurd is insisting on that strict impartiality and neutrality that Government ministers traditionally adopt when dealing with the affairs of N. Ireland, for he makes it plain that the measures are aimed not only at the IRA but at the Loyalist paramilitaries.

Of course all extortion is reprehensible but it does seem certain that action against it will only be effective in those areas where the Government's writ is effective - namely Loyalist areas. There the victims may feel safe to make complaints whereas in the 'Republican' no-go areas it will be a very brave or fool-hardy Catholic businessman who will count on Police protection against IRA vengeance.

So it seems that Hurd's 'get tough policy' will be far more effective against Loyalists than the IRA and that, no doubt, is the intention.

For just lately it seems that the security forces have been rather more successful in discovering Loyalist arms caches than those of the IRA. While the Loyalist armoury is usually home-made and fairly primitive, that of the IRA is expensive, imported, and sophisticated.

Clearly, when the planned sell-out of Ulster takes place, it is intended that the Loyalists will be powerless to do anything about it.

O Sweet Bernadette

REMEMBER Bernadette Devlin? She was the young Catholic girl who was the most fervent, not to say strident, champion of the 'civil rights movement' in Northern Ireland in the early seventies. In full flow she was really quite impressive as she recounted the horrors of Ulster Unionists discrimination against the 'republican community' whose only crime was to seek to overthrow the Government and transfer control of N. Ireland to a foreign power.

Bernadette was so persuasive that she was elected to Parliament as one of those 'constitutional republicans' so beloved by the ratbags who infest the North Thames Gasworks.

When she made her maiden speech she was listened to in respectful silence as she recited the catalogue of Loyalist iniquity; indeed it was reported at the time that MPs were 'deeply moved'. Well of course, they're fair-minded chaps who would no doubt give the same sort of hearing to a National Front MP.

When IRA murderer Robert Russell was extradited from Eire to N. Ireland, who was it who made a last minute legal move in the Dublin High Court to prevent that extradition? Why, bless my soul, who would have thought it - none other that Mrs Bernadette MacAliskey (nee Devlin).

Now I wonder what MPs thought of that, especially those who had been deeply moved by sweet Bernadette MP? It is often said that the British don't really understand the Irish, especially the Irish talent for hyperbole. Why, when an Irishman tells you he cut his finger he'll make it sound like a bloodbath. They call it blarney. People less sympathetic call it lying.

But then sometimes it seems that MPs think rather better of liars than they do of those who present them with unpalatable truths. I suppose, really, it's fellow feeling.

Time on His Hands

I SEE that the Liberals have just had an election to choose the party leader to succeed the appalling David Steel who devised the brilliant political stratagem that succeeded in destroying the credibility of both the Liberal and Social Democratic parties at a single stroke.

I shall continue to call them Liberals despite the fact that, after their successful and notably unopposed take-over bid for SDP ballast Shirley Williams and Roy 'Wobbly Woy' Jenkins, they have adopted the grandiose title of Social and Liberal Democrats (SLD). They were certainly well advised not to call themselves Liberal and Social Democrats (LSD) even though it would have been far more appropriate to the Liberal Party - LSD being the noxious drug that brings on mental derangement and wild hallucination.

Perhaps it was the acquisition of glamorous Shirley Williams that turned the Liberals along the path of beautifying the party. Whatever the reason, they have chosen as their new leader the inexperienced but gorgeous Paddy Ashdown by a massive majority over the experienced, earnest, but somewhat less gorgeous Alan Beith.

However, I must confess to being somewhat prejudiced. I prefer my politicians to be plain and honest - in fact one day I hope to meet a politician who is both - and Paddy Ashdown looks like the sort of chap one sees on TV advertising deodorants with names like Lynx, Leopard, Cougar and Polecat.

While there is certainly a pressing need for deodorants in the Liberal Party, particularly among the beards, hairy tweeds, and open-toed sandals brigade, Paddy is so incredibly lovely that I suspect he spends fifty percent of his waking hours in the beauty parlour and ninety percent of the rest in front of the mirror.

If true, that leaves him only five percent of his conscious moments to manage Liberal policy. Is it enough?

On second thoughts though, after an impartial examination of Liberal policies, I wonder what he'll do in his spare time!

RACE WAR IN AFRICA

Media Silence as Black Massacres Black

THERE IS a country in Africa where a minority of settlers rules over an 85% Black African majority with a rod of iron. A country in which that Black African majority has no civil rights at all, and is subject to continual racial discrimination by the majority regime.

It is a country in which the colonist minority, who arrived less than three hundred years ago, have all the best jobs, houses, land, a higher standard of living, make up the bulk of the Army and maintain total and exclusive control of the Government.

It is a country which has seen sickening atrocities as the minority regime clings to power, aware that just across the border the same racial minority was overthrown by the Negro majority who now rule. A country in which in just one year in the 1970s, the racist minority regime massacred a hundred thousand Blacks who dared to demonstrate in search of their freedom. A country in which, in recent weeks, has seen yet another round of brutal atrocities by the racist regime against the Black majority. Blacks have been shot, machine-gunned by helicopter gunships, their children hacked apart with bayonets, entire villages of unarmed Africans gunned down by Government troops. Since mid-August over 20,000 Blacks have been killed, and tens of thousands more have fled across the border to safety in a land where their fellow Negroes rule.

Well, of course, I suppose this is yet another liberal recital of the awfulness of White-ruled South Africa. And so no doubt the latest racially-inspired atrocities by the minority racist regime were splattered across our TV screens, greeted with howls of outrage from 'World Opinion', angry speeches from every Black African delegate at the United Nations, threats of sanctions from the US Government, ban on cricket tours of India, calls for boycotts of the country's produce in British supermarkets and the rest of the global orchestrated outcry at racist minority rule and oppression of Blacks in Africa.

• A young victim of the Ethnic violence in Burundi.

DEAD WRONG!

The country concerned isn't the Republic of South Africa. It's Burundi in Central Africa, and the ruling 15% racial minority aren't White Afrikaaners but Nilo-Hamitic Tutsi, dark-skinned but very tall and with some remote European ancestry far in the past. The Hutu majority are Negroes. Their equally Black-skinned rulers discriminate against them not on the basis of skin colour but of height - there is a difference of a foot in the two tribes' average height.

The Negroes in Burundi have suffered far worse than even the most wild liberal allegations suggest their South African fellow-blacks have done. Since independence from Belgium in 1962, the minority Tutsi regime has killed several thousand times as many Blacks as the South African is accused of killing. Burundi has seen a thousand Sharpville 'massacres', not a few dozen, or a few hundred, but well over a hundred thousand Blacks gunned down by Government troops and police. And there has been scarcely a peep of protest, let alone an outcry, from anyone. No rows at Commonwealth Conferences, no demands for sanctions, no 24 hour pickets of Burundian Embassies, no objection to Burundian participation in the Olympics. Ten thousand Steve Bikos have died in Burundian police cells, and no film stars have Cried Freedom. A hundred thousand Nelson Mandelas held without a luxury private clinic to ease their passing, and not a protest or a pop-song. A racial minority regime has butchered, tortured and oppressed for over thirty years and no one has even heard of it. Or of Burundi. At most, an obscure paragraph in the less-widely-read quality press notes the latest bloodbath. But nobody cares.

Why?

Because although the brutal racist minority regime in Burundi may be a million times worse than even its bitterest enemies paint the Government of South Africa - it is Black. So of course, as many a Labour Council has pronounced, it can't be racist - only Whites can commit that 'mortal sin'.

Media Watch

EASTENDERS IS on three times a week. Once on Tuesday, once of Thursday and repeats of what you have seen on Tuesday and Thursday again on Sunday.

Let's take a look at some of the characters in EastEnders:

Dr Legge. Warm, kind, and concerned for the welfare of all his patients both in and out of working hours. Dr Legge is Jewish.

Mr. Bloom. Warm, kind, jolly with a brilliant knowledge of the East End. Very generous and a man willing to help anyone who has a problem. Mr Bloom is Jewish.

Michael. Dr Legge's nephew. A young doctor pushing for progress within the medical profession. A campaigner for the rights of minority groups. Knowledgable, forthright yet helpful and approachable. Michael is Jewish.

Carmen. Social worker. Never has a moment to herself as she worries about the problems of the people of Albert Square. Her boyfriend Matthew who adores her so much and is continually trying to fondle her gets frustrated as Carmen puts her work before pleasure. Carmen is Black. Matthew is White

Colin. Warm, goodhearted and despite his illnesses still willing to help other members of Albert Square. Colin is a homosexual.

The Rashim Family. Run the general store. Mr Rashim is an excellent businessman who sometime has to be rather hard to protect the interests of his business. The family have high moral standards and protect their traditional family values. The Rashims are Asian.

Hands up those who think that Britain's most watched soap opera might just be designed to influence our way of thinking!

 Next month, despite the Race Relations Act, we will reveal what life would really be like in Albert Square with these characters!

GETTING BOGGED DOWN

IN EARLY September the Japanese announced the latest gadget with which they hope to flood our country. NTT, their equivalent of British Telecom, proudly presented what they describe as - the Intelligent Toilet.

Apparently this product of Nipponese ingenuity records your blood pressure, weight, body temperature and urine content as you sit enthroned upon it. It then transmits this data to a central computer which diagnoses any health problems and sends you a report on the same.

This amazing device will no doubt pour unrestricted into our country, like all other Nipponese gadgetry, further flushing our native electronics industry down the drain.

Fraud Exposes Cannibal Market

A CHINESE gangster has been caught swindling Black cannibals in Zaire, the Ivory Coast, Brazil and Borneo. Law Yun-Chuin, 49 year-old head of Hong Kong Tong crime syndicate, was selling them cans labelled 'Boiled Human meat', under the trade mark of a missionary in a pot. But in fact, revealed Inspector Kwok Shan-mi of Hong Kong Police, 'It wasn't human meat but processed pork'. So, continued the inspector, 'we arrested him and charged him with fraud'.

According to Inspector Kwok, Hong Kong Police siezed 'over 70,000 tins' of fake human flesh, but 'we cannot know how many more tins have been sold in other countries. At least 100,000 were sold and delivered that we know of '.

28 of Law's gang have also been arrested for their part in the fake 'long pig' racket. They had made a fortune out of Black and Brown cannibals across the Third World who were prepared to pay extortionate prices for their traditional human flesh diet sent to them in tins as local police tend to frown upon them devouring their neighbours al fresco.

Third World Heads of State, unlike their subjects, don't face these legal obstacles to their cannibal appetites. Former Ugandan President, Idi Amin, Central African Emperor Jean-Bedel Bokassa and who knows what other 'Commonwealth Statesmen' simply ate their political opponents after having them shot. French paratroopers found much of the Opposition in the Presidential fridge in bits when they toppled Bokassa in 1978. Meanwhile liberals still try to claim that cannibalism never existed and is a 'racist lie'. Try telling that to Hong Kong's Mr. Law.

EXETER PARADE

ON SATURDAY 17th September, Exeter saw the climax to the 300th anniversary celebrations of the landing of William of Orange in 1688. 2,000 members of the Loyalist Orange Lodge from all over Britain, including 15 marching bands, made their way through south Exeter.

National Front members from London, Bristol, Sussex and the West Midlands joined local members from Exeter, Plymouth and Torbay in supporting the march.

Over 100 copies of The FLAG and Vanguard were sold and nearly 1,000 'William's Work Goes On' leaflets were handed out to marchers and public alike. Many new friends and contacts were made and a number of local people expressed interest in joining the NF. It is hoped to get an Exeter group off the ground in the near future.

NF Directorate member, Ian Taylor, gave interviews to the local press and television, stressing that the NF had no links with the Orange Order and were at the activity to show their support for Ulster's Loyalists, promote the National Front and distribute NF literature to the local population as well as the marchers.

FLAG SPORT

The Battle For Elland Road

By Peter Taylor
Leeds National Front

ON FRIDAY September 23rd a group calling itself 'Leeds Fans United Against Racism and Fascism was launched to combat the growing success of National Front papersellers at Elland Road, the home of Leeds Utd Football Club.

In the pre-season, United had signed Vince Hilaire and Noel Blake, two black players, in an effort to please Leeds City Council (Labour-controlled) who own the ground.

The LFUARAF campaign had the backing of both Leeds Council and Leeds Trade Unions and received wide coverage on both local radio and in the local press.

D-Day was Saturday 24th when Leeds Utd played host to Chelsea. In spite of the new title it was the usual mob of scruffy Labour Party degenerates who turned up to confront the NF papersellers and try to persuade the Leeds fans not to buy The FLAG and Vanguard.

Twenty-two local NF members either sold papers or gave out leaflets topically entitled 'Labour Betrays British Workers'. The response was excellent from the Leeds fans. We gave out over 2,000 leaflets and completely sold out of papers with still half-an-hour to go till kick off. It was the most successful papersale Leeds NF have had at the ground for years.

It was a great turn-out by Leeds National Front members proving that we will not be intimidated by Labour Party thugs.

STOP ALL ASIAN CRICKET TOURS!

• It's easy to win when the umpires are on your side!

PAKISTAN CHEATS, India wants to choose our side, the England team that toured Pakistan earlier this year had to put up with appalling umpires, and now the Australians have nearly called off their tour.

The FLAG made it clear that we supported Mike Gatting when he came up against Pakistani umpires. The TCCB gave him lukewarm support then fired him.

Now when India decides that only some of our cricketers are allowed to play no one says anything. The cricket authorities sadly shake their heads, most politicians are too scared of Asian voting power in Britain even to mention the fiasco. One ex-Liberal Party Treasurer, Lord Lloyd, even went so far as to say in a letter in The Times that we should have agreed to India's demand and picked a team that they would accept - perhaps the Southall Krishna Temple XI would be suitable.

The Australians have been so fed up with the Pakistani cheating that they wanted to call off their tour. The Australian captain, Alan Border said:

"There has been a conspiracy from the start. We were never going to be allowed to win". He added that it would not be worthwhile for any team to tour Pakistan again.

The National Front agrees - Stuff the Pakistanis and stuff the Indians. If they can't play cricket fairly then leave them to play each other. We should restrict our overseas tours to countries that play fairly namely Australia, New Zealand and South Africa.

The Chemists' Olympics

FORMER BRITISH olympic athlete and drug smuggler David Jenkins has claimed that two out of three athletic medal winners at the Olympic Games will have used drugs to improve their performance.

Although Canada's Ben Johnson and several Bulgarian weightlifters have been caught out few others have failed the dope test.

Does this reflect an honest competition or could it be that American and Soviet chemists are just one step ahead?

India's Mistake

THE INDIANS thought they were being terribly clever by barring England cricket players who had played in South Africa. That way, they thought, they would get the black African vote in their bid to hold the Commonwealth Games.

How wrong they were! The 1994 Commonwealth Games have gone to Canada. Even the Africans worked out that if the Indians cheat once they are likely to cheat again and perhaps next time they would try it on the Africans!

Moving to South Africa?

CRICKET OFFICIALS can say what they like, more and more cricketers now regularly play in South Africa. Graham Gooch, the England captain is just the latest to be approached about a possible tour. In the past he has played regularly in South Africa, even captaining touring teams.

Good Old Millwall!

IF EVER there was a reason for not having a 'Super League' without promotion or relegation then it must be Millwall F.C. After years of second and third division football they have injected real life into the first division getting 16,000-20,000 gates and currently running in the top few clubs.

This has not been achieved by coming up against weaker teams, they have already beaten Everton 3-1, but by holding their own against the so-called 'super clubs'.

The idea of a "Super League" is corrupt. It's just the idea of big business wanting to have a closed shop for their few special clubs so that they can milk the football-interested public for all they can get.

Millwall have shown in just the first few games of the season, that there is no such thing as 'Super Clubs' with a right to a life-time membership of a Super League!

GAMES GLORY FOR W. INDIAN ATHLETES

THE RESIDENTS of the West Indies must feel pretty peeved when watching sport these days.

How many Gold Medals would they have won at the Olympic Games if their athletes had been running for their real country instead of their adopted ones?

How many boxing world champions would they have?

Instead they see the young blood of their country prostituting themselves for countries that use, then abuse, them.

• Linford Christie: Quote of the Olympic Games.

The classic quote of the Games came when Linford Christie, running in a Great Britain vest, said that he was proud to be the first European to run under 10 seconds for the 100 metres. After he said it, the penny dropped, and the look on his face said it all, he then realised that whatever vest he was wearing he could never be a European.

Countries such as Britain claiming gold medals won by West Indian athletes is a farce. It's conning the British people, confusing the athletes concerned and above all robbing the West Indies of the glory those islands deserve for producing so many excellent athletes.

ROY OF the Rovers is being banned from North London libraries in a crack down on children magazines and comic that do not reflect the ethnic make-up of the borough of Camden.

Roy's team Melchester only has one black player and that's not enough for the Labour Council. A spokesman said "We have a number of ethnic minority people living in the borough and we have to consider their feelings when they see certain publications being stocked".

An Affront on all Fronts

SO NOEL Blake, the West Indian central defender at present on the books of Leeds United, is affronted when he arrives at Elland Road on a Saturday and has to pass National Front members selling The FLAG. (In Perspective. Saturday 24th Sept. Radio Four).

The British people are affronted at being forced, by successive governments, to play host to millions of West Indians, Indians and Pakistanis without being asked their opinion on the matter.

Its a sorry state of affairs when the feelings of all those concerned are ignored by our so called representatives in Westminster. Let's face it, it would benefit everyone if all coloured immigrants were returned to the land of their ethnic origin and Britain was returned to the British people.

Patience Rewards FLAG Punters!

PATIENCE is a virtue - and that applies when following The FLAG tipsters horse racing selections.

In July's issue we gave you one horse - REGENT LAD trained by Mrs L. Siddall. Since it was tipped it ran three times unplaced. Then on Wednesday 21st September over 1 mile at Beverley it romped home at the rewarding odds of 25-1. Giving a welcome return to those who had the patience to follow it.

Three days later on Saturday 24th September, Turn Blue one of the three selections in the last FLAG came home 25 lengths clear of his nearest rival in a three mile chase at Market Rasen at odds of 9-2.

For October there's confidence behind our two selections. Just be patient and follow them, and if they win, keep on following them.
